Interaction SDK

General Information - Interaction SDK

From 7.2 and higher, Genesys Integration Server (GIS) is no longer a standalone product; it is part of Interaction SDK.

Important

Genesys support for the platform versions mentioned on this page ends when the respective vendors declare End of Support. For more information, see Discontinued Support.

Supported Operating Systems

Notes:

- An asterisk (*) indicates the oldest operating systems supported for the Genesys 7.x and Genesys 8.x Maintenance Interoperable Components, including AIX Power PC, HP-UX, and Solaris SPARC.
- For Microsoft products with sub-versions such as R1/R2, all versions are supported except as noted for the specific product.
- Genesys supports use of products on Oracle Linux, provided that the Oracle Linux distribution is 100% compatible with a Genesys-supported Red Hat distribution, and that the Oracle Unbreakable Enterprise Kernel is not used. Genesys will only support Oracle Linux based on testing and reproduction of any issues in the equivalent Red Hat Linux version; no investigation or testing will be performed on Oracle Linux itself. Support only applies to Oracle Linux versions 5.x and later.
- The GIS proxies for .NET are only supported on the Microsoft .NET Framework, so they are only supported on Windows.
- When running on Windows, the GIS is only supported on Windows Server operating systems, not on Windows Client operating systems.

Prerequisites

Notes:

- AIL third party dependencies The AIL installs with all needed external libraries. Client applications must make sure that those dependencies exist and are not overridden by other classpath libraries. AIL 7.6.4 third party-libraries: Apache log4j. File: log4j.jar JavaMail 1.3.1 (spec 1.3): File: mail.jar FlexLM Java 7.2: flexlm.jar
- Needed only when not using JDK 6 or higher: JavaBeans Activation Framework 1.0.2 (spec 1.0). Used by JavaMail. File: activation.jar Java Architecture for XML binding (ref impl 2.1.1, spec 2.1): jaxb-api.jar, jaxb-impl.jar
